

Mino-based genealogy of the Yakuôji school:

Kaneharu (兼春)

Ôei (応永, 1394-1428)

some sources date him around Chôroku (長祿, 1457-1460)

and say that he was the son of Kaneyuki (兼行)

Kanesuke (兼助)

Bunmei (文明, 1469-1487), son of Kaneharu, he came originally from Mino but moved later to Mikawa province, it is said that he is the same smith
as Kanesuke (兼助) who was active around Entoku
(延徳, 1489-1492) in Mino

Suketsugu 1st gen. (助次)

Shôchô (正長, 1428-1429), according to transmission the son of Kaneharu

Suketsugu 2nd gen. (助次)

Entoku (延徳, 1489-1492)
son of Suketsugu

Suketsugu 3rd gen. (助次)

Tenbun (天文, 1532-1555), it is also said that he was the second son of a not further differentiated Kaneharu (兼春)

Sukenaga (助長)

Entoku (延徳, 1489-1492)
son of Suketsugu, it is said
that he moved later to Ômi

Bizen-based genealogy of the Yakuôji school:

Sadayoshi (貞吉)

Hôtoku (宝徳, 1449-1452)

according to transmission the son of a later generation Kongôgyôe Morikuni who had moved to Mikawa province

Kunimori (国盛)

Ôei (応永, 1394-1428)

according to transmission a descendant of Nakahara Kunimune (中原国宗) called "Nakahra Heizaburô" (中原平三郎)

Sadayoshi (貞吉)

Eishô (永正, 1504-1521), he was a successor of the Sa school and is therefore called "Mikawa-Sa", signed the place name Kubara (久原)

Kunimori (国守)

Ôei (応永, 1394-1428) supposedly the son of Nakahara Kunimori (中原国盛)

Kunitsuna (国綱)

Eikyô (永享, 1429-1441), supposedly the son of Nakahara Kunimori, bore also the family name "Nakahara"

Sanemori (実守)

son of Kunimori

Sanemori (真守)

Bunmei (文明, 1469-1487), son of Sanemori (実守), some say that he was active around Tenbun (天文, 1532-1555) and that he was the 3rd generation after the aforementioned Sanemori (実守), signed the place name Ohara (小原)

Narimune (業宗)

Bunmei (文明, 1469-1487) supposedly the son of Nakahara Kunitsuna

Kuniyoshi (国吉)

Bun'an (文安, 1444-1449), supposedly the son of Nakahara Kunitsuna

Yoshimitsu (吉光)

Chôkyô (長享, 1487-1489), others date him around Bun'an, supposedly the son of Nakahara Kuniyoshi, it is said that he was the same smith as Takamitsu (孝満)

Michiyoshi (通吉)

Bunmei (文明, 1469-1487)

Yoshinori (吉則)

Meiô (明応, 1492-1501), according to transmission the son of Yoshimitsu